

Visit Bland County and Wolf Creek Indian Village & Museum

Imagine life 500 years ago. The Wolf Creek Indian Village will introduce you to the life led by the Eastern Woodland Indians who inhabited the land 500 years ago. Our recreated village is the size and layout of an actual archeological excavation known as the Brown-Johnston site.

The conventional museum exhibits artifacts from the actual site, various exhibits focused on the Eastern Woodland Indians. The exhibits are also enhanced with collections from across the United States.

Located within two minutes of Interstate 77, Exit 58 (Bastian, Virginia) this is an educational experience situated in the beautiful mountains of Southwest Virginia. Interpretive guides will lead you on an exploration of skills needed by the inhabitants to survive and thrive.

Beautiful nature trails and ample picnic facilities make this a must stop for families and those interested in the Native American history of the First People of Southwest Virginia. Groups are welcome.
