Stafford County (pop. 137,000) is one of Virginia's fastest growing counties and is situated just 25 miles south of the Washington, DC Beltway and 50 miles north of Richmond. The County offers a pro-business climate, with quality of life amenities like beautiful parks, award-winning law enforcement, championship golf courses, and nationally ranked schools.

Additional offerings include:

- Diverse and highly educated labor pool
- Excellent school systems
- Low Tax rates
- Competitive Housing Opportunities

Stafford offers:

- A pro-business environment
- Diverse recreational attractions
- Home to national and international companies that include; Geico, Intuit, SAIC, General Dynamics, ManTech, Hilldrup, Greencore
- Among the fastest-growing independent counties in Virginia
- # 1 in job creation (per capita 2009 - 2014)

Stafford is home to hundreds of defense contractors, IT, cyber and homeland security firms as well as the DEA, FBI Crime Lab and Marine Corps Base Quantico. Stafford also is home to a highly educated workforce and a supportive business environment with no BPOL, M&T, Boat or Aircraft Tax.

INFRASTRUCTURE

Stafford County is located along Interstate 95, providing accessibility to major markets and more than two-thirds of the U.S population within a day's drive. With US Route 1 providing a parallel and alternate route, north-south travel couldn't be more convenient. With its central location between Virginia's capital in Richmond and the nation's capital, major national and international airports are also as close as 45 minutes away.

Highways

Stafford County has nearly 600 miles of state-maintained roadways, including 16 miles along Interstate 95, 46 miles of primary roads, and approximately 550 miles of secondary roads.

- I-95 connects Stafford from north to south with interchanges located at mile markers 148, 143, 140, 136, and 133.
- US Route 17 passes through the southwest portion of Stafford, overlapping briefly with I-95. Both I-66 and I-81 are easily accessed via US-17.
- US Route 1 provides additional north-south highway alternatives, running parallel to I-95.
- Virginia Route 3 offers east-west connections to US Route 301, as well as the Hampton Roads region.

Airports

Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport (DCA): Accessible via Interstate 95 and just 45 minutes to the north, Ronald Reagan Washington National Airport (DCA) is located in Arlington, VA just across the Baltimore-Washington International Airport (BWI-Marshall): Located 90 minutes to the northeast via Interstate 95 (or VA-3 to US-301), Baltimore International serves 40 passenger and cargo airlines. Non-stop commercial flights to 69 domestic and 10 international destinations are offered daily.

General Aviation

Stafford Regional Airport (RMN): The 550-acre Stafford Regional Airport, adjacent to Interstate 95, is strategically, and conveniently, located within the fourth largest market in the U.S., just minutes from the Nation's capital and other Northern Virginia business centers. Located only 30 miles from the Capital Beltway at Exit 136 off I-95 in Stafford, this general aviation operation serves as a "reliever" airport given its close proximity to Washington metro area facilities. The Stafford Regional Airport facility includes a 5000-foot by 100-foot instrument runway with full parallel taxiways, Jet-A and Av-Gas fuel storage facilities, and 25 acres of paved aircraft parking aprons. The Stafford Regional facilities can accommodate 75,000 annual operations and 100 based aircraft, including corporate business jets, with gross weights up to 70,000 pounds and wing spans up to 80 feet.

Shannon Airport (EZF): Located about 2 miles southeast of Fredericksburg, and offering a 2999-foot by 100-foot runway, Shannon Airport welcomes private and corporate aircraft.

Rail Service

CSX: CSX Corporation, together with its subsidiaries based in Jacksonville, FL, is one of the nation's leading transportation suppliers. The company's rail and intermodal businesses provide rail-based transportation services including traditional rail service and the transport of intermodal containers and trailers. TRANSFLO terminals are also located in nearby Fredericksburg, offering the leading service for transloading of bulk commodities between rail cars and trucks in the Eastern U.S. and Canada.

Virginia Railway Express: Virginia Railway Express (VRE) is a transportation partnership between the Northern Virginia Transportation Commission (NVTC) and the Potomac and Rappahannock Transportation Commission (PRTC). VRE operates 30 commuter trains each weekday through Virginia providing commuter service to Washington, DC from Stafford's two stations Fredericksburg (FBG) and Quantico (QAN).

Amtrak: Twenty-four Amtrak trains offer passenger service available from two nearby stations - Fredericksburg (FBG) and Quantico (QAN). Both of these stations offer multiple daily departures.

Trucking and Freight Lines: Stafford businesses are served by more than 30 short and long-haul trucking companies, offering national, regional, and interstate carrier service. Several of these carriers operate terminal facilities in Stafford including Estes Express, Wilson Trucking, Southeastern Freight, Consolidated Freightways and McLane Mid-Atlantic. A FedEx processing center is also located in Stafford County near the Stafford Regional Airport.

HIGHER EDUCATION

Several educational institutions are located within or in close proximity to Stafford County, including University of Mary Washington (UMW) and Germanna Community College (GCC). These institutions offer a variety of post-secondary education certificates, as well as associate, bachelor, and master degree programs. Many of these institutions help to “feed the pipeline” for area employers, with specialized curriculum and training programs tailored towards meeting the needs of local industries. In addition, both UMW and Germanna (along with nearby George Mason University) have been key partners in development of the proposed research and technology park initiative currently underway in Stafford County. With courses also being made available at alternative locations, including one of Stafford’s premier office parks - Quantico Corporate Center - University of Mary Washington, University of Maryland University College (UMUC) and Germanna Community College have demonstrated their responsiveness and commitment to supporting the local business community and their valued workforce.

Germanna Community College is a two-year public institution of higher education in the Virginia Community College System. Germanna provides high-quality, accessible, and affordable educational and training opportunities that meet the changing needs of the Stafford County community and the surrounding area. The College’s Stafford County Center was opened in July 2009 with funding support from the Stafford County Economic Development Authority. The Center is located on Jefferson Davis Highway (US Rt 1) at Aquia Park, and provides a full range of credit courses in addition to Workforce and Community Education. A recent partnership with the County, Germanna, Stafford Schools, and the regional library at space Germanna will begin next year, providing an early college for high school students to earn their associates degrees.

The University of Mary Washington is a co-educational, public institution that offers graduate and undergraduate degrees. In addition to its primary location in the heart of historic Fredericksburg, just three miles from Stafford County, UMW has two other campuses - one in Stafford, which caters to working professionals, and another in Dahlgren, which offers graduate science and engineering programs.

Other Nearby Educational Institutions include:

Marine Corps University (MCU): Located within Marine Corps Base Quantico, MCU develops the professional competence of its Marine, joint military service, international, and civilian students. The University focuses on the development of leadership, war-fighting, and staff operations skills of the nation’s military forces through resident and non-resident learning programs. MCU programs are available for active duty military personnel.

George Mason University (GMU): George Mason is one of Virginia’s largest public universities with its main campus located about 35 miles to the north of Stafford in Fairfax County. With approximately 33,000 students - of which more than 20,000 are enrolled in undergraduate studies - Mason offers more than 100 degree programs in a variety of disciplines. Mason’s other campuses include Innovation Technology Park in neighboring Prince William County, where courses focusing on life sciences and applied information technology are widely available.

HEALTHCARE

In addition to being ranked one of the Virginia's healthiest counties, Stafford offers a wide range of healthcare services.

Stafford Hospital Center - established in 2009, the hospital, part of Mary Washington Healthcare, Inc., is centrally located near the Stafford County Courthouse, and offers a modern medical facility and an array of routine and specialty healthcare services. U.S. News ranks Mary Washington #6 Best Hospital in Virginia and 2014 Pulmonary Care Excellence Award, Health Grades, Inc.

Other nearby medical services include:

KidMed - After Hours Urgent Care

Childrens Hospital of Richmond at VCU - Stafford Therapy Center

Helping Hands - Pediatric Occupational Therapy

QUALITY OF LIFE

In Stafford there are plenty of opportunities to enjoy live performances, hand-crafted jewelry, or gallery-worthy paintings. Broadway Musicals come alive at the - Riverside Center. Breathtaking canvasses and portraiture can be explored at one of the most notable landmarks - Gari Melchers' Home & Studio at Belmont. This 18th century estate is also the studio of famous American impressionist Gari and his wife Corinne. Melchers, was one of several early twentieth century American artists who earned critical praise and painted portraits of the "greats" of his time including Mark Twain and famous giants of industry of his time. The Melchers' home, restored gardens, trails and art studio are located in Stafford.

A major recreation project in Stafford County is under construction and includes an aquatic center plus the athletic fields that are part of a 50-acre site. It is anticipated the fields will be one of the host sites of the Youth Soccer National Champion Series.

Stafford's close proximity to the Nation's capital - with well-known amenities like the Kennedy Center, Constitution Hall, and the National Gallery, or nearby Richmond - with the world-class Virginia Museum of Fine Arts and the beautifully-restored Landmark Theater, arts and culture can easily be part of daily or weekend activities.

Stafford's advantageous location and geography make for a wide range of local recreational choices. Bordered to the east by the Potomac River and to the south by the Rappahannock River, Stafford offers a combined total of 51 miles of shoreline. The rivers and their tributaries provide the perfect setting for water sports, fishing, as well as a scenic boat route to the Chesapeake Bay.

The Rappahannock River is noted for its natural, undeveloped shores and its white water canoeing. Creeks and lakes abound in Stafford County, and many parks offer an escape to observe the wildlife and natural surroundings. One of Stafford's newest additions, Government Island - a natural park preserve and archaeological site - offers both recreation and history through its trail system and interpretive signs. The Island's 1.5-mile natural hiking trail (footpath) around the island, includes a wooden boardwalk over the tidal creeks, along with some mildly rugged terrain for observing aquatic and native plants, as well as birds and other wildlife.

Other nearby indoor and all-season recreational opportunities, include local wineries and breweries.
