

Orange County, Virginia – Human Resources Director

Deeply rooted in American history, Orange County, Virginia is nestled in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains in Central Virginia. With a population of more than 37,000, the County encompasses 355 square miles ranging in elevation from 175 to 1,200 feet above sea level. With its quiet lifestyle and friendly feel, it has achieved an enviable balance of modern amenities, easy accessibility to work and recreational opportunities, a multitude of health and public services, and points of interest—in every direction.

Orange County is a dynamic mid-sized county. The governing body is the Board of Supervisors, which establishes policies for the administration of the County. The Human Resources Department administers a comprehensive human resources program and meets the human resources needs of the Orange County government, and its current and potential employees. The Human Resources Director position is being reestablished and will report to, and be supported by, the Assistant County Administrator for Management Services, and supervise the two Human Resources Specialists.

The County seeks a Human Resource Director with a high level of emotional intelligence and compassion, who will work to build the reputation of the department and the position as a useful and helpful resource, and will have the ability to operate with complex work-groups, schedules, and benefit programs. A bachelor's degree from an accredited college or university in public administration, business administration, human resources, or a related field is preferred. Seven to 10 years of progressively responsible experience in a professional human resources environment (three to five years of which must be in a supervisory/managerial position) is also preferred. Certification by the Society for Human Resources Management (or similar certification) and local government experience is highly desired. Other equivalent education and work experience may be considered in meeting the minimum education and experience requirements. The individual hired for the position will be forward-thinking, innovative, and tech-savvy, with the ability to use technology for efficiencies including electronic forms, digital documents, and video conferencing software.
