Director of Community Development and Zoning Administrator

TAPPAHANNOCK, VIRGINIA
The Community

Tappahannock, Virginia is a historic, waterfront community cradled along the shore of the Rappahannock River, strategically placed at the crossroads of Central and Tidewater Virginia. Tappahannock embraces a unified, diverse population of roughly 2,400 residents, per the 2020 U.S. Census Bureau. Tappahannock is the premiere destination for the Middle Peninsula and Northern Neck regions, providing a wide variety of choices for eating, drinking, shopping and activities. One can find world class medical services including the new addition of VCU Health, ongoing modernization of infrastructure, and continued cultivation. The Town of Tappahannock continues to experience growth and continues the effort to ensure the community's future needs remain a priority.

The History

The river and village were first explored by an English explorer, John Smith, in 1608. Smith discovered unwelcoming Native American inhabitants known as the Rappahannock Tribe upon his arrival to the village. Subsequently, the river and village acquired their names from Captain John Smith. The river became the Rappahannock River, which meant “rise and fall,” of water and the village became Tappahannock which meant “town on the rise and fall of water.”

Steamboat wharfs were placed along Essex County shores and were a focus of river transportation and commerce for the community. The wharfs exported and imported goods and products from around the world, drastically contributing to the community livelihood and growth. Changes in transportation came as automobiles and railway increased. The Downing Bridge was constructed in 1927 making Tappahannock a regional hub for commerce and the gateway to Virginia’s Northern Neck.
Ongoing Community Initiatives

The Town of Tappahannock has several projects that are in the works.

• The Town recently acquired a little more than two acres of open space in the historic district that will serve as Central Park. Construction will begin in Fall of 2022. Central Park will include a splash park, pickle ball courts, tennis courts, picnic pavilion, playground area, garden area, grilling area, and a multi-use entertainment structure that will be available for music, movies, and more.

• Town Council has made public water access a priority, thus developing Hoskins Creek Park. The first phase of construction for the park is expected to begin in Fall of 2022. Hoskins Creek Park is located where the locals may know the property as the “Old Captain Thomas” off Route 17/360 in the heart of Tappahannock. Hoskins Creek Park will have an ADA accessible kayak launch, 300 feet of concrete floating docks, commercial buildings for shops, public parking and a trolly system to transport individuals to Downtown Tappahannock.

• Tappahannock Main Street has a full-time Executive Director and became a Virginia Main Street Designated Community in 2020. The Town of Tappahannock, Tappahannock Main Street, and Summit Design and Engineering are all working together on a CDBG downtown revitalization master plan.

• A preliminary engineering study is being conducted by Draper Aden Associates of the town’s old airport to redevelop the property into a commerce & industrial park. The study is expected to be completed by Spring of 2023.

• Tappahannock has its own water and sewer system, serving customers in town and outside of town. ARPA funds are being used to install a new remote water meter reading system. The new meters will provide residents with an online portal for their account, have leak detection capabilities, and allow meters to be read from town hall, without needing a person to physically inspect meters on-site. ARPA funds are also being used to identify and repair sections of the town’s sewer system where infiltration & inflow is occurring.
Tappahannock is where the river and life come together creating the “rivah” life. Tappahannock, a waterfront community, has a wide variety of living amenities including a state-of-the-art golf course, multiple subdivisions, multiple eateries, movie theatre, VCU Health medical facilities, boutiques, art galleries, multiple antiquing destinations, museum, dealerships, and several hotels to choose from for visitors. Tappahannock offers several outdoor activities for our community not limited to but including monthly farmer’s market, events hosted by the museum, 3rd Thursdays concert series, and the DAW Theatre is currently undergoing renovation with plans to reopen and host events for the community. Tappahannock is considered the premiere destination for our region as it has several assets that are not available elsewhere. Tappahannock is an all in one, attractive to all.
